DARRYN EGGLETON

WILD ABOUT YOU

Kruger National Park in South Africa, is one of the continent's largest and most spectacular game reserves. To many of us, Kruger sounds like the dream destination for the holiday of a lifetime, but for wildlife artist Darryn Eggleton, it was his childhood home. Consequently, his knowledge of and empathy with his subject is second to none and his exquisite wildlife portraits are composed with both accuracy and affection.

“I LOVE TO BRING THE SPIRIT OF AN ANIMAL ALIVE IN MY PAINTINGS,
RECREATING THE EYES, AND THE
WAY THE FUR LAYS UPON EACH WILD
CREATURE IS THE CHALLENGE THAT DRIVES MY CREATIVE PROCESS.”

ORIGINAL ARTWORK

The exquisite detail and lifelike quality of Darryn's work comes from intensive research. He collects reference material on field trips into the bush as well as at breeding centres before heading into the studio. His paintings take their subjects out of their natural habitat, placing them against a single colour backdrop to create dramatic examples of photo-realism with a contemporary twist. This practice brings each beautifully described animal into sharp and immediate relief, and gives it a hypnotic and lifelike presence.
